- 14.(1) An applicant given access to a record that discloses information about himself or herself may submit to the government body that has custody or control of the record,
- (a) a written objection respecting any error or omission of fact that the applicant alleges is contained in the record; and
  - (b) a written objection to, or explanation or interpretation of, any opinion that has been expressed by a third party about the applicant and is contained in the record.

Information becomes part of record

(2) As of the date of its receipt an objection, explanation or interpretation submitted under subsection (1) becomes part of the record and shall not be destroyed, altered or removed from the record.

Denial

15. Where a request for information is denied the Minister shall give to the applicant written reasons for the denial and a written description of the right to appeal the denial and the procedure for appealing.

Appeal to Supreme Court judge

16.(1) Where the request for information is denied, the applicant or, in the case of an appeal under sub-section 11(4), the third party affected may appeal by filing an appeal with a judge of the Supreme Court.

Summary disposition

(2) The Supreme Court judge may receive evidence by affidavit or in any other manner considered appropriate by the judge and may decide the appeal in a summary manner.

Judge to review material

(3) On an appeal the Supreme Court judge may require the production of and may inspect the information that is the subject of the appeal, if the information exists, but that inspection shall be conducted without the presence of any person and the confidentiality of the information shall be preserved pending the judge's decision as to whether the applicant has a right to it.

Production of records

(4) Notwithstanding any other Act or any privilege under the law of evidence, the Supreme Court judge may, for purposes of disposing of any appeal under this Act, order production of any record in the custody or under the control of a government body for examination by the court.

COMBETTINE

Procedures to avoid disclosure

(5) In disposing of an appeal under this Act, the Supreme Court judge shall take every reasonable precaution, including where appropriate, conducting hearings in camera, to avoid disclosure of any excepted information.

Return of documents

(6) All records or other information produced for use by the Supreme Court judge shall be returned to the government body responsible therefor within thirty (30) days of the disposition of the appeal.

Time for appeal

17.(1) An appeal pursuant to section 16 shall be filed within 30 days of receiving notice of the decision to deny access or the notice required under section 11(4).

Extension of time

(2) Prior to, or after, the expiry of the 30 day period referred to in subsection (1), and where special circumstances warrant, the court may extend the time for filing an appeal.

Burden of proof

18. In any appeal under this Act, the burden of proof is on the party seeking to establish that the applicant has no right of access to the information requested.

Order of judge

- 19.(1) Upon hearing an appeal, the Supreme Court judge may,
  - (a) order that the request for some or all of the requested information be granted;
  - (b) order that the denial of the request be upheld in relation to some or all of the information, or
  - (c) make any order in consequence of, or to implement, an order under paragraphs (a) and (b) that seems necessary and just in the circumstances.

Denial of appeal

(2) If, under sections 10 or 11, there is no right to the requested information the Supreme Court judge shall deny the request.

No further appeal

20. A decision of the Supreme Court judge under section 19 is final and binding and there is no appeal therefrom.

Delegation by Minister 21. The Minister or the official exercising the chief executive officer function for each government body may designate an official within that body to carry out the functions required by this Act.
